FACTUAL BASIS FOR PLEA

Comes now the United States of America by and through United States Attorney William C. Killian, and Assistant United States Attorney Christopher D. Poole, and submits the following summary of the government's evidence in support of defendant's plea to Count One of the two count indictment:

- a. On June 21, 2010, the defendant arrived at his estranged girlfriend's work.

Another person was driving the defendant. The defendant jumped out of the backseat of the car and grabbed the victim (his girlfriend). A co-worker of the victim witnessed the defendant take her. In fact, the victim grabbed the co-worker's hands/arms in an effort to keep the defendant from pulling her into the back of the car with him, but the defendant succeeded in overpowering the victim and taking her. The driver of the car never turned around and never spoke. The defendant took the victim a few miles away where his truck was parked. It had some of their things in it. He put her in the truck and drove away. She said she did not want to go. He told her he would take her home, but he kept driving to Mississippi to a house owned by some of his friends where the defendant said, "they were going to live." The defendant called the victim's niece and said he was taking her to North Carolina, but, obviously, he went the other way.

- b. The defendant was subsequently arrested with the victim still in his custody/control in Mississippi.

c. The defendant was brought back to face the kidnapping charges in state court. FBI Special Agent Leane Blevins and Chattanooga Police Department Detective Alex Mercado interviewed the defendant in jail. The defendant waived his Miranda rights and spoke. Mercado translated the interview which is recorded on audio tape. The defendant admitted that he took the victim with him by force. He said he did it because he loves her.

d. The majority of these events, including the abduction, occurred in the Eastern District of Tennessee.

Respectfully submitted,
